

IEEC2017

6th – 8th September

International Entrepreneurship
Educators Conference
Enabling Enterprise for All

Engage with one of the largest global enterprise and entrepreneurship education audiences - exhibit at IEEC2017

The International Entrepreneurship Educators Conference, organised by Enterprise Educators UK (EEUK) and the National Centre for Entrepreneurship in Education (NCEE), has been providing an interactive forum for enterprise and entrepreneurship educators to share experiences and engage with others for over a decade. The conference consistently attracts around 250 delegates including senior decision makers from higher and further education, enterprise and entrepreneurship educators and practitioners, careers and employability advisers, entrepreneurs, local and national government representatives and incubation centre managers.

Catherine Brentnall (pictured right), MD of Ready Unlimited, said "IEEC is really special; delegates are welcoming and interested, and, as a result, you make connections which lead somewhere. The conference has given me a platform to share my approach of deeply involving teachers and schools in designing their own approaches to enterprise education. I've met academics and experts who have become involved in this work, leading to new partnerships, projects and programmes. I highly recommend it!"

The conference format includes plenty of networking time and breakout sessions when delegates have the opportunity to visit exhibitor stands located close to the refreshments.
